The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Ohio?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Is there objection to the consideration en bloc of the gentleman's amendments?

There was no objection.

Mr. REGULA. Mr. Chairman, I offer these amendments on behalf of the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. SKAGGS), a valued member of the Interior Appropriations Subcommittee; the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. FOX); the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) and myself.

The gentleman from Colorado, the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the gentlewoman from Texas have worked tirelessly to find an acceptable offset for increases in energy conservation and have in coordination with the Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Management and Budget identified excess receipts that can be used for that purpose. The amendment also partially restores cuts to the fossil energy research and development program. I appreciate the efforts of the gentleman from Colorado, the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the gentlewoman from Texas.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in very strong support of this amendment. It has been carefully crafted by the gentleman from Ohio, by the gentleman from Colorado, by the gentleman from Pennsylvania and by the gentlewoman from Texas. I would like to say that she has been a real leader and concerned about the fossil energy program. This will benefit that program.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Texas for whatever comments she would like to make.

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, let me just simply say that the fossil energy research and development program provides invaluable service by protecting the environment and by increasing the efficiency of power generation.

As my colleagues well know, we now face a crisis in Texas, overwhelmed by extreme and enormous heat, impacting my constituents and at the same time in the shadow of those terrible tragedies are major energy companies, oil and gas, who have the capacity to engage with the utilization of this particular resource these dollars and make energy more efficient and help those elderly, help those people suffering from the burdensome heat, help local government to establish a better energy source, more efficient source, and as well to help our domestic energy security problem and also our consumption.

Mr. Chairman, I would greatly like to thank the gentleman from Ohio for the work he has done. My constituents in Texas will be most appreciative.

I truly hope that my joint amendment with my colleagues to H.R. 4193, the Department of Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Bill of 1999, will be adopted today.

Our amendment raises the appropriations level for the Fossil Energy Research and Development program of the Department of Energy by $45 million. We must continue to fully fund the Fossil Energy Research and Development program because it provides the invaluable service of protecting the environment by increasing the efficiency of power generation. More importantly, the program ensures that fossil energy technologies continue to progress in a manner that promotes emissions reduction and control and energy efficiency. The program also safeguards our domestic energy security, and given the fact that our Nation will continue to use fossil fuels well into the future, we must strive to fund this program in a manner that sustains its financial viability.

The Fossil Energy Research and Development program is an invaluable government component due to the necessity of fossil fuels to our economy and economies of virtually every country around the globe. Today 85 percent of our domestic energy consumption is supplied by fossil fuels; by 2015, the contribution of fossil fuels will grow to 88 percent.

Every credible energy expert believes that the foreseeable national and global energy future, like the present, will be shaped predominantly by fossil energy.

The benefits of fossil energy use—affordable prices, a stronger economy, greater employment, and a contribution toward improved
